Th usual source of water is a well, common to a number of cottages, and provided with a bucket or pump. An earthenware basin should be placed in the wash-house, large enough to hold the water for one day s use. On each side of the fireplace are dwarf cupboards with doors, and above them shelves; as cottage fixtures, these would appear to be absolute necessities. All the room doors should be of the same size and make, and provided with the common Norfolk thumb-latch (which is preferable to the ordinary concealed door-lock and handle), and a common bolt. The windows would be the common lifting sash, and not French casements, which, unless very well made, are never found to shut close. The extreme wretchedness of the...
